In many ways, the connectivity and access to the internet has transformed education at all levels. The ability for students to access learning materials online as well as for instructors to share lessons and collaborate has revolutionized teaching and learning. Where education used to be concentrated in school buildings, it can now be accessed by millions of people (almost) anywhere.

5 Billion households with school-aged children do not have access to the internet.

80% of schools cite they can deliver common area access. This is where most schools stand today.

80% of schools cite institution-wide network but it is inadequate for burgeoning use of digital curriculum.

75% of school systems surveyed do not have any off-campus strategies for providing connectivity to students at home and after school.

80% “Unreliable” opinion of most instructors surveyed about their networks.